

If when the Sun at Noon displays

If when the Sun at Noon— dis-plays his bright - er rayes thou but app-ear; he then all pale with shame and fear, quench-eth his light, and grows more dimne,—com'pos'd to thee, then Stars to—him. If thou but show thy face a - gain, when dark - ness doth at mid - night reign; dark - ness

6

11

16

fly's, and light is hurl'd round a-bout the si - lent world; so as a-like thou driv'st a - way both light and dark - ness, night and— day.

20